INTRODUCTION

It is a pleasure to report on another challenging, but highly successful year for the Institute of Classical Studies.

A full academic programme lies at the heart of our research promotion and facilitation mission, for which we are funded by HEFCE. The Institute hosted some 150 separate events with speakers from around the world and at varying stages of their careers, an indication of our commitment to the promotion of all aspects of classical antiquity and those who study it. A full list is appended below (p. 8). Our regular seminar series met throughout the year: ancient philosophy, a new Director’s Seminar replacing Greek literature in the autumn term, Latin literature, classical archaeology, Accordia, the Mycenaean Series, ancient history, postgraduate work in progress, and the extremely popular Digital classicists seminar. We continued to sponsor the Roman Art seminar held at the Courtauld Institute. Lectures included the annual T. B. L. Webster Lecture given by Mark Stansbury-O’Donnell; a Trendall Lecture by Edward Herring; a Special Guest Lecture by Jeff Soles, who gave the first presentation anywhere of new discoveries at Minoan Mchlos in Crete; the Ventris Memorial Lecture by Metaxia Tsipopoulou; and the Annual ICIS-BSA Spring Lecture by Vangelio Kiriatsi. Once again a highlight of the year was the John Penrose Barron Memorial Lecture, the third in the series, given by Judith Herrin. We hosted guest lectures organized in collaboration with associated bodies, including Accordia, the Friends of the British School at Athens, and the Virgil Society; and various conferences, including the Annual Byzantine Colloquium (this year on medieval Cyprus) and conferences on Etruscan Literacy, on Gender, and on Aesthetics.

In the second year of our publishing agreement with Wiley-Blackwell, two issues of the now biannual Bulletin of the Institute of Classical Studies were published in both hard copy and online. A further eight volumes in our prestigious Supplements series were also published, including two further volumes in the highly successful Samian pottery stamps series and a volume of essays in honour of our former Director, Geoffrey Waywell. This Festschrift was launched at a special event in November with a lecture by Professor Andreas Scholl, the Director of the Antikensammlung in Berlin. A second special launch followed in December, with a Festschrift in honour of Peter Warren, Cretan Offerings (edited by Olga Krzyszowskowa).

The Institute’s Webster Fellow for 2010/11 was Professor Mark Stansbury-O’Donnell (University of St Thomas) and the Trendall Fellow was Dr Edward Herring (Galway). Other visiting fellows were Professor Dick Green (Sydney), Professor John Hilton (Durban), Professor Richard Janko (Michigan), Dr Elizabeth Langridge-Noti (Athens) and Dr Rachel Zelnick-Abramovitz (Tel-Aviv).

Networking activity increased during the year. On the literary side the Institute is now connected with the Cicero Awayday network and the Flavian Epic network, which is hosted at Nottingham; and we have close links with the Centre for Oratory and Rhetoric at Royal Holloway. On the archaeological side, we strengthened our involvement in the Aegean Seals Network with the Universities of Marburg and Heidelberg, and established a new Dynamics network concerned with mechanisms of power and prestige in the Aegean Bronze Age (partners include Berkeley and Zagreb), as well as a Pots in Context network. The Institute became the first institutional member of Aegens, a digital platform for Aegean Prehistory. We were honoured to continue our close relationship with the British School at Athens and record our congratulations to the BSA on its 125th Anniversary. We are developing links with the British Museum, especially in connection with its Tivoli project, and of course continue to work closely with the Hellenic and Roman Societies. Finally, our long-established Theatre Project is currently being revitalised in collaboration with Dick Green, with the digitalisation of the archive, which we hope will prove to be an invaluable online resource in due course.

For the majority of classicists it is the Library that is the mainstay of our activity. Our team of dedicated librarians continued to offer service of the highest quality, maintaining the reputation of the Library as one of the finest classics libraries anywhere in the world.

Finally, it should be noted that the Director served throughout the year as the Deputy Dean of the School of Advanced Study. This for a second year put extra responsibilities on the other staff of the Institute, and Dr Krzyszkowska, as Deputy Director, helped to ensure the smooth running of the Institute when the Director was occupied by School business.

It is with great sadness that I have to record the passing of Dr Stephen Usher, formerly Senior Lecturer in Classics at Royal Holloway.
